PROVISIONS FOR ESTABLISHMENT OF
MINING DISTRICT PEOPLE'S GOVERNMENT

Pei-p'ing, 23 August (NCNA) -- The North China People's government has issued an order concerning the establishment of administrative agencies in mining districts. The provisions are as follows:

1. Mining districts (kung k'uang ch'u) may establish people's governments on approval of the North China or provincial governments. The new governments will have a chairman and deputy chairman and will operate under the guidance of the municipal, special office, or hsien governments holding jurisdiction over them.
 2. In all such administrative districts, the laborers' dormitories and business organizations will delineate a certain number of streets (or villages) in which the laborers and their families may elect street (or village) people's governments to operate under the guidance of the district authorities.
 3. In most instances, mining district people's governments will establish labor sections (lao-tung k'e) or labor assistants (lao-tung chu-li-yuan) in accordance with a North China directive concerning labor agencies in provinces and municipalities.
 4. The leaders of the mining district people's government will occupy a cadre position equal in rank to the hsien or ch'u chiefs. If necessary the deputy mayor of the controlling city, a special deputy, or the deputy hsien chief may hold the office concurrently.
 5. The leader of the mining district people's government will be a member of the district industrial control committee, and the production plans committee.
- Whenever the district people's government holds a meeting the chairman of the district labor union will be invited to attend.
6. Plans for the boundaries of the industrial or mining area and the organization of the people's government will be submitted through government channels for approval. When the plans are approved by the North China or provincial people's governments, they may be proclaimed and placed into operation.
